The Center for Faculty Excellence and the University Committee for the Advancement of Teaching invite you to:

UCAT Designated Conference

The Performance Task Academy is a highly interactive, collaborative environment designed to encourage participants to leave with tangible performance tasks to implement in their own classrooms.

Marc Chun earned a Ph.D. in education from Stanford University and completed a postdoctoral fellowship in sociology and education at Teachers College, Columbia University.

Performance Task Academy

Friday, February 19, 2016 - 8:00 a.m. – 5:00 p.m.

Saturday, February 20, 2016 - 8:00 a.m. – Noon

Thompson Alumni Center

The two day conference is designed to help faculty members use their course content to develop performance tasks. The follow-up workshop from 2015 will help participants understand how to consistently and efficiently score open-ended responses from a performance task. The workshop will have participants develop scoring guides and rubrics, as well as a plan for revising their performance task based on what was learned from the initial administration.

- Sponsored by UCAT (University Committee for the Advancement of Teaching)
- Application can be found on Center For Faculty Excellence website at: cfe.unomaha.edu/UCAT
- Application Deadline – January 15, 2016
