

Literature and Culture

Graduate Certificate in the Department of English, University of Nebraska at Omaha

The Department of English offers a 6-course (18-hour) graduate certificate in the study of literature in its cultural and subcultural contexts. This certificate can be earned by itself or else as an additional credential within the larger master's program in English at UNO.

Recent course titles and topics have included:

- Cultural Theory
- Walt Whitman and Emily Dickinson
- Shakespeare
- Latino / Latina Literature
- Literature of Postcolonialism
- The Beautiful and the Sublime
- American Dream / Nightmare
- Literature of the American West
- Medieval Celtic Literature
- Ancient Greek and Roman Drama
- Heuristics and Hermeneutics of the Poem
- Gothic Novel
- Renaissance Satire

The certificate is an excellent option for high school teachers wishing to brush up on recent trends in literary study or to earn the credential to teach Dual Enrollment courses for UNO; members of the community looking for a stimulating and cultural activity in a rigorous graduate program; retirees who have time to devote once again to cultural activities and intensive reading; and anyone looking for a way to return to university life with a goal of personal enrichment.

For more information, contact the director, Prof. Robert Darcy: rdarcy@unomaha.edu.

To enroll, or to add the certificate to your current program, apply here:

<https://www.applyweb.com/unograd/index.ftl>