On Thursday, October 12, the Goldstein Center for Human Rights at the University of Nebraska Omaha will host a special Human Rights Forum to address the recent developments in the Middle East.

In this forum, local experts and community members will discuss the recent war between Israel and Hamas and its global and local implications. The participants are James Clark (UNO Department of History), Curtis Hutt (UNO Department of Religious Studies), Ramazan Kilinc (UNO Department of Political Science), and Wendy Goldberg (Executive Director of the Tri-Faith Initiative). Paul Williams (UNO Department of Religious Studies) will moderate the panel.

The event will be virtual, and the registration for the event is required. The participants will receive an individual access link to join the webinar.
