

HUMAN RIGHTS AND ANTI-RACISM

HOW IS ANTI-RACISM PRACTICED IN THE COMMUNITY?

February 11, 2021 | 12:00-1:00 p.m. | Via Zoom: REGISTER HERE

2020 was a historic year for civil rights and racial justice in the U.S. The concept of anti-racism has become more commonly discussed in media and policy dialogues. Rather than simply denouncing racism or attempting not to engage in racist words or actions, anti-racism is defined by taking deliberate actions to end racism. This Human Rights Forum provides an opportunity to learn about what anti-racism means in practice and how practitioners are working in local communities to uplift racial justice and promote anti-racist awareness and action. Join us as panelists working hard in our communities share what anti-racism looks like to them as individuals and within their careers. Q&A to follow.

Co-sponsored by the Goldstein Center for Human Rights and UNO Black Studies
