LEARN TO LEAD EFFECTIVELY

All organizations, large and small, have managers. They effectively lead, coordinate and communicate innovative solutions in all aspects of an organization. Managers are adaptable leaders with strong communication skills that enable their organizations to compete in the business world.

A multi-functional set of core courses will allow students to discover different areas of business and leadership such as organizational behavior, managing change, and project management that will help them succeed in managerial and leadership roles. This minor will refine the student's critical thinking, communication and analytical skills in classes that use business cases, experiential real-world business problems, service-learning projects, and guest speakers who bring the "real world" into the classroom.
