

Daniel Hutton is a teacher and woodwind artist in the Greater Johnstown/Pittsburgh area. He is an active performer with the groups Smooth Sound, Wanderlost, performs for local musical theater productions, and tours with Ted Vigil, who is a nationally recognized John Denver tribute artist. Daniel received bachelor's degrees from the University of Cincinnati College Conservatory of Music and Indiana University of Pennsylvania, and a master's degree from California State University, Long Beach. He has studied with Agnes McConaughy, Dr. Keith Young, Rick Van Matre, Dr. James Bunte, Sal Lozano, and Eric Marienthal.

Daniel was a member of the 2012 Disneyland All-American College Band, where students from across the country receive a 12-week internship and play numerous recognizable Disney medleys at various locations throughout the park, while receiving mentorship and masterclasses from the nation's top musicians and clinicians.

Currently, Daniel works at Westmont Hilltop School District, where he teaches General Music, Band, and Orchestra to students in grades Kindergarten through 6th, and at the University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown (UPJ), where he directs their collegiate jazz ensemble.
