How Can We Help?

The University of Nebraska at Omaha Assessment and Intervention Clinic is a service for children who are struggling with academics. The clinic provides training opportunities for graduate students who are working on a Master’s degree in Special Education to work with children from the community.

The UNO Assessment and Intervention Clinic offers assessment and intervention services. Graduate students taking a course in advanced assessment and intervention and holding a current teaching certificate assess a child’s academic skills and implement research-based interventions based on the results for each child. Participation in the clinic allows graduate students to apply knowledge acquired in their courses about assessment, planning, implementation and evaluation.

Graduate students are supervised by and receive feedback from the clinic’s faculty.
Strengths of the Clinic Noted by Parents

- You bring new learning ideas to the table
- Very positive environment
- Gained a lot of new information
- Satisfied with outcomes
- Made my child feel confident in himself
- Teacher was organized and gave good explanations
- My child really enjoyed coming and it seemed to help motivate her
- I thought it was extremely valuable for us because we received a thorough evaluation regarding her academic strengths and weaknesses

Special Education Mission Statement

The Special Education Program is dedicated to providing excellent services to our community, while giving our graduate students the opportunity to learn and develop their assessment skills. Our mission is to prepare students for completion of a Master’s degree, which includes assessing individual students and making instructional decisions based on these assessments. We strive to provide high quality services, produce positive outcomes, treat all equitably, and ensure strict confidentiality.

Clinic Highlights

During the UNO Assessment and Intervention Clinic, students participate in the following activities:

- Individual academic assessments
- Research-based academic interventions based on assessment information
- Progress monitoring in a targeted academic area
- Assistance with homework as time permits and instruction on strategies to use when completing homework

Location

The UNO Assessment and Intervention Clinic is located on the campus of the University of Nebraska at Omaha, on the northeast corner of 60th and Dodge, in Roskens Hall, room 512. Our phone number is 402.554.2201. Parking for our clinic is provided in a lot on the north side of Roskens Hall (on map in red, permit required) or the parking structure (for $2.00 /day).

Clinic Hours

The UNO Assessment and Intervention Clinic operates in the spring semester in conjunction with an advanced assessment class. The clinic meets on Tuesday nights from 4:45 to 6:15 beginning in late January and ending in April.