Increasing Your Local Union’s Political Effectiveness

All levels of government, in our democratic republic, have a moral responsibility to use our commonwealth in ways that protect and empower ALL of us EQUALLY. When our economy fails to promote the general welfare of the nation, government has a moral obligation to enact legislation that nudges the economy in the right direction.

As a result, political involvement, which encompasses much more than merely voting, is critical to raising levels of fairness and justice in the workplace and community. Decisions made by elected officials from President to school board members directly impact jobs, safety, health care, consumer protection, and much more.

Who should attend?
Union leaders # Policy makers # Activists
