

ENGAGING IDEAS

KICK-OFF DISCUSSION & EXPLORATION OF WRITING, CRITICAL THINKING, AND STUDENT ENGAGEMENT

FRIDAY, AUGUST 31 | 1:30 – 2:30 PM | UNO WRITING CENTER (ASH 150)

Engaging Ideas by John C. Bean has been identified as the 2018-2019 book selection from the Center for Faculty Excellence.

In his text, Bean describes practical steps and ideas instructors can adapt and adopt to foster higher levels of critical thinking and student engagement across disciplines.

A limited number of complimentary copies of Bean's book are available to those interested in participating in the discussion and exploration throughout the academic year.

Dr. Travis Adams, Assistant Professor and Director of the UNO Writing Center, will kick off a series of interactive discussions on these ideas and more.

Participants should bring at least one assignment, course objective, learning outcome, or teaching challenge they want to help thinking through this semester.

Faculty unable to attend the first session should contact Travis directly gtadams@unomaha.edu

For More Information:

Center for Faculty Excellence | 402.554.2427 | facultysupport.unomaha.edu/calendar