READING WITH PURPOSE
USING LITERATURE TO ACTIVATE LEARNING

Wednesday, November 14, 2018 | 4:30 – 6 P.M. | CPACS 132D

About This Workshop
This session demonstrates that literary works offer a special invitation to develop purposeful reading skills.

Participants will learn how to design their own brief purposeful encounters with literary works that may be effectively embedded in courses across the curriculum to maximize the impact of student learning in and beyond their encounters with text-based course material.

Participants need not have any background in literary analysis to be successful at designing such exercises. Techniques will be made accessible to faculty of all disciplinary affiliations.

FOR MORE INFORMATION AND TO REGISTER
Center for Faculty Excellence | 402.554.2427 | facultysupport.unomaha.edu/calendar

Presented by:
Dr. Kristin Girten
UNO Associate Professor
English