UNO Advantage Scholarship Program

The UNO Advantage Scholarship Program awards tuition scholarships for an amount up to the difference between resident and non-resident tuition. The number of students receiving tuition scholarships under this competitive program shall be determined at each campus by the Chancellor. The following graduate students, having met all other requirements for admission, will be eligible for consideration for this tuition scholarship under this program:

Graduate and Professional

1. Entering graduate and professional students who have a cumulative GPA of 3.00 for all previous work attempted at all colleges attended prior to enrollment at the University of Nebraska;
2. Students who enter the program according to the above criteria and continue in good academic standing.

Nominations on behalf of eligible students may be made by the department/school graduate program committee (GPC). Nominations should include the following: a letter of support from the GPC, strengths of the candidate, what will the candidate bring to the program and a copy of the candidates resume or vitae, if nominating more than one candidate please list in rank order. The Dean for Graduate Studies will conduct evaluations. The award, in part, will contribute to highly qualified students choosing UNO for graduate study. The award is applicable to both part-time as well as full-time status graduate students. These waivers cannot be applied towards the cost of undergraduate courses, non-credit courses, courses taken for audit, or courses taken at another NU campus.
